INTRODUCTION

The independence of our country has opened up a wide range of opportunities for the development of national forms of interests and abilities of preschool children. The interests and abilities of preschool children are a practical and theoretical interaction of educators with a specific goal, taking into account the spiritual resources and modern requirements and needs. As an independent state, Uzbekistan is rapidly developing in the economic, socio-political, spiritual and educational spheres. The formation of national loyalty, first of all, the strengthening of independence, the formation and upbringing of a healthy generation in the national spirit is of great importance for the development of independent Uzbekistan. The peculiarities of our people and its high moral duties are at the heart of national values. National values are also an important factor in human spiritual development. Historical events in the development of any nation, as well as those who have made a positive contribution to it, are also part of national values. Before evaluating values, it is important to know the specific historical circumstances in which they occurred, as well as the opportunities and needs specific to those periods. Understanding the social significance of values also depends on people's ability to correctly imagine their future tasks. The presence of mature social and national consciousness in the members of the society, the high level of spiritual maturity are the factors that strengthen the opportunities for the development of values and increase their social and educational effectiveness.

It is no exaggeration to say that the Uzbek people have historically created a unique platform in the field of educating preschool children on the basis of universal values. In this regard, it is important to organize classes using folk pedagogy. Today, its role in solving the goals and objectives of educating preschool children on the basis of universal values is invaluable.

We have set ourselves the task of educating the younger generation in the national spirit, through national values. To do this, pedagogy and psychology, parents need to know exactly the goals and objectives of mental education in the family. The purpose of mental education in the family is to explain to bachelors, parents, and especially children that they cannot achieve their goals without education. The task of mental education in the family is to prepare the person to become a perfect person by combining the skills, abilities and habits related to the application of the acquired knowledge in private life. It is important to understand the importance of educating preschool children on the basis of universal values. The family has a unique role to play in shaping the child. It is the parents' responsibility to create the conditions for the child to be brought up as a perfect human being in the family. The family is the basic unit of society, without the proper organization of family upbringing, it is impossible to ensure the stability and stability of families and the social development of society. From this point of view, the organization, supplementation and improvement of the parenting culture in the family is one of the most important family pedagogical problems.

As mentioned above, the formation of national consciousness and national thinking, the promotion of spirituality and enlightenment is a requirement of today. These important problems can only be solved through education. Indeed, the wisdom of education is the power of independence. The power of independence means the high level of human intelligence, the development of the society and the state in which these people live, and their global prestige. This glory can only be achieved through education. That is why our ancestors first of all paid great attention to upbringing. Discipline should be defined as the various interactions, activities, activities, and interactions between the educator and the trainee. Spirituality and enlightenment are the product of intelligence, high morality, multifaceted talent and potential, religion and courage, and so on. The main purpose of education is to develop and implement effective organizational, pedagogical forms and tools for the spiritual and moral upbringing of the younger generation, based on the rich national, spiritual and historical traditions, customs and universal values of the people. In short, the formation of a national consciousness, a sense of national solidarity, from pre-school age, is extremely important for the development and adherence of each nation to its values. Only those who are deprived of national spirit and spirituality can have a nihilistic attitude to their language, history and traditions. to bring up preschool children in accordance with the rich national, cultural and historical heritage and spiritual morality of the people, to form national patriotic feelings in children, to form the need for education in preschool children, to prepare them for the educational process, to develop children's thinking.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, it should be noted that the main goals and objectives of educating preschool children are the mental and physical development and preparation of children for school, their psyche, personal abilities, aspirations and needs, taking into account national and universal values and territorial characteristics ensuring development, preparing them for school education. Development puts a great responsibility on parents. The family has its own national rules for the upbringing of children, which parents should use appropriately. If there is spiritual peace and harmony in the family, if family members take care of each other, if they can find a basis for the upbringing of children, then such an environment will have a positive impact on the upbringing of children. It will not be exaggerated. After all, the younger generation must learn and respect their national values and moral culture.
