ABSTRACT: - The main goal of the agrarian reform, which is being carried out in the agricultural sector, is the development of communication, the formation of mechanisms for the effective use of the land, which will determine the real ownership of the land. In the republic, the development of public transport, the economy of the industry, and the production and mental health of workers are carried out without the supervision of the state.

As a result of the promotion of farming activity, more than 160 thousand farms will be established in our country in the next few years, and today 10 thousand farms will provide effective service in Uzbekistan. As a result of the ongoing economic reforms, our country has experienced steady economic growth.

INTRODUCTION

In this regard, the relevant Regulations of the Republic of Uzbekistan, Presidential Decrees and Cabinet of Ministers' decisions were adopted. While the adopted Regulation, Law and Decisions were based on the principles of the management of the farm and the state, the state did not look after the members of the farm.

- the government is responsible for the payment of property taxes;
- the effort of the people of the republic to protect the social welfare and provide materially;
- to prevent the increase of the level of employment of the people in the workplaces that provide service;
- to provide impartiality and freedom to the enterprises in determining the forms of production, regardless of the government, and to ensure the speed of the process.

As you can see, the policy of the republic's agricultural economy, industry, and the state has a deep meaning, and the objective conditions in the republic are taken into account.

In short, in the Republic of Uzbekistan, the issue of effective use of agricultural land resources and protection of the land has been taken into account in all the regulations and decisions adopted under the agrarian sector. In our opinion, the reasons for this are the following:

Birshiden, the republic's natural resources are limited. 4.3 million to the 35 million people of the republic. There is a type of irrigated fields for about a hectare. For the expansion of the irrigated areas, the republic still has sufficient water resources, but the water resources are limited in the republic. In recent years, there have been difficulties in supplying the irrigated springs with water resources.

From the beginning, the people of the republic are well stratified in terms of market relations. The boundary between the strata of the population that has reached the level of the lower level and the majority of the level of the level of the level is getting further and further away. In this condition, the property of the gerge is very high, and all the gerders go to the hands of the elders, and they gather and stay there. It is natural that in such a situation, social conflicts are the reason for the emergence of contradictions.

Therefore, as a result of the fragmentation of land plots into small land plots, the degradation of private land ownership has led to the difficulty of mechanization and irrigation works, as well as increased production costs. Apart from this, such irrigation-melioration facilities do not meet the requirements of complex and efficient use.

Finally, for the purpose of rational use of land resources, the Decree of the President of the Republic "On measures to increase the role of land owners in supporting and strengthening the country's agricultural production with the goods of the state" was adopted, and the following points were determined:

1. In order to determine the results of the use of land resources, an inventory is made of the lands allocated to farmers and farm households.
2. Farmers who use land resources inefficiently should be encouraged to farm farms that use land resources efficiently. In the irrigated areas of these farms, the area is extended to 2 hectares.

In accordance with the regulations and other normative documents of the Republic of Uzbekistan cited above, the administrative processes of the agricultural enterprises of the Republic of Karakalpakstan were suppressed by the state.

However, the economic reforms that are being carried out will completely change the service of agricultural enterprises and will not give them the opportunity. So, it is necessary to improve and improve the process of forming and developing the relations in the agricultural economy. We suggest that the following suggestions are appropriate for the implementation of these tasks:

- control of the material economy mechanisms of economic entities while achieving the increase of the natural productivity of the land;
- imposing administrative measures on business entities that provide ineffective services;
- to improve the use of these roads in the parks and gardens;
- improvement of the natural and economic productivity of the fields of production and service delivery in various contracts between the economic subjects, improvement of the penalty mechanisms for determining the wrongdoing in the previous cases;
- we are able to promote the development of both farmers and peasant farms.
